Talking About Your Leadership
Fred Morgan Kirby and Leadership
How will we evaluate your senior leadership?

APPLICATION ROUND:
• VALUES & STAKEHOLDER ACCOUNTABILITY
  • The enterprise and its senior leadership are explicit about the core values that drive their work and are accountable to the clients or beneficiaries they aim to serve.

INTERVIEW ROUND:
• STRATEGIC COLLABORATION
  • The enterprise identifies and engages with potential partners and allies, leveraging strategic collaboration to advance impact.

• RESOURCEFULNESS & RESILIENCE
  • The enterprise and its senior leadership are solutions-oriented, possesses a strong internal locus of control, and perseveres in the face of challenges.

• TEAM DIVERSIFICATION
  • The enterprise builds teams (both internal and external) that reflect diversity of thought, lived experience/background, education, socio-economic status etc. and leverages that diversity in strategic decision-making.

How will we evaluate your senior leadership?
Values and Stakeholder Accountability
Values & Stakeholder Accountability: Who are you accountable to, and how?

- How do you articulate the core values that drive your work?

- How do you hold yourself accountable to stakeholders and beneficiaries?

- What strategic pivots have you made as a result of stakeholder and beneficiary feedback?

- What specific roles exist in the enterprise that arms beneficiaries with decision-making power?

The enterprise and its senior leadership do not explicitly state the core values that drive their work. There is no evidence of accountability to clients or beneficiaries.

The enterprise and its senior leadership make a vague reference to their core values and accountability to clients or beneficiaries.

The enterprise and its senior leadership clearly state the core values that drive their work and how they are accountable to clients or beneficiaries.

The enterprise and its senior leadership are clearly explicit about the core values that drive their work and clearly articulates accountability to clients or beneficiaries; points to evidence of strategic changes or pivots that have been made as a result of beneficiary feedback and has specific roles within the enterprise that arm beneficiaries with decision-making power.
Strategic Collaboration
“To go fast, go alone. To go far, go together.”
-Disputed origin
Strategic Collaboration: How do you identify and leverage partners to advance impact?

• How have you engaged with partners and allies across sectors?

• How have you leveraged these relationships to advance impact?

• What is your internal process to identity new allies in the ecosystem?

Team Diversification
Team Diversification: What differences exist on your team? How do you leverage and value these differences?

• How have you built an internal and external team that reflects diversity of thought, lived experience/background, education, or socio-economic status?

• How do you leverage this diversity to drive strategic decision-making?

---

What do we mean by Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion?

While many definitions of these three terms exist, for the purposes of this paper, we are focusing on the following aspects of the terms:

Diversity: the numeric representation of individuals with a range of identities, perspectives, and lived experience (e.g., gender, race, country of origin).

Equity: “the fair treatment, access, opportunity, and advancement for all people, while at the same time striving to identify and eliminate barriers that have prevented the full participation of some groups.”

Inclusion: an environment (primarily workplace, in this context) which supports, serves, and values all individuals such that they can fully participate.
Team Diversification: What differences exist on your team? How do you leverage and value these differences?

“In the early stages, when organizations are in “build-mode” and laser focused on growth, it’s easy to miss an opportunity to be intentional about equity in both staff recruitment/retention, and operational process. As a result, the staff does not reflect the people impacted by the vision, mission, and work, and we don’t slow down to consider all perspectives around key strategic moves.”

Enterprise has not built a team that reflects diversity of thought, lived experience/background, education, or socio-economic status.

Enterprise has built a diverse team but there is minimal evidence of leveraging diversity in decision-making.

Enterprise has built internal and external teams that reflect diversity of thought, lived experience/background, education, socio-economic status and attempts to leverage these in decision-making.

Enterprise has built internal and external teams that reflect diversity of thought, lived experience/background, education, socio-economic status; internal and external teams reflect the diversity found in beneficiaries, and provides clear and concise evidence of leveraging the diversity on these teams in strategic decision making.

Enterprise has built internal and external teams that reflect diversity of thought, lived experience/background, education, socio-economic status; internal and external teams reflect the diversity found in beneficiaries, and provides clear and concise evidence of leveraging the diversity on these teams in strategic decision making. Additionally, the enterprise has an internal process to identify experiences or identities that are not represented on the team.
